IN SUPPORT OF STUDENT SCHOLARSHIPS

Graphic Communications Management and Technology Program
School of Continuing and Professional Studies
New York University

Excellence in Education and Innovation in Media

The Master of Arts in Graphic Communications Management and Technology is an innovative degree that provides students with critical leadership skills specific to the field of graphic communications media. They build expertise in management practices, learn to make the most of resources, and gain a thorough understanding of the capabilities of current and emerging technologies in a program designed to help them become leaders in the field.

A dedicated faculty of industry leaders, as well as a distinguished Advisory Board, guides them. These top industry leaders share with students their experience, knowledge and vision. The Board also provides generous academic scholarships through the PRISM Fellowship, serves as faculty, invites distinguished guest lecturers to the classroom, hosts industry events, offers global internship and career opportunities and mentors students one-on-one.

The program provides a dynamic forum for industry, academia, government, and students to lead through innovative growth in graphic communications and media.
